Good morning Dr Alexander,

Thank you for your letter dated the 4th November and received by me on the 11th.

Frankly, you may well have been better served by allowing me to maintain the belief that I was not to be afforded a reply.

That I waited for well over a month for such a scant and, to be honest, intellectually insulting response is incredibly disappointing.

The fact that you have given no indication that my complaint alerts you to anything other than 'best practice' being employed will at least provide another example of how medical self-regulation is failing dismally in areas that require ethical and moral governance.

Sincerely,
